THE FRENCH BIRTH RATE.

Some interesting remarks on the birth rate in France are made by Dr. W. H. Whitehouse in his annual report as medical officer of health for the metropolitan borough of Deptford. He states: "The serious decline in the French birth rate, which last year showed a falling off of 32,869 births as compared with 1910, has led the Minister of Finance to appoint a commission for the purpose of investigating the causes of the decline and of suggesting remedies."

THE ATTRactions OF TENNIS.

To the uninitiated all tennis looked very much the same—a rather pointless, lacrosse-like affair. But the fact is there is just as much difference in class between tennis as there is between the Central States tournament, as there is between "bush league" and big league baseball. And this difference obtains not only in the degree of mechanical proficiency but in the strategy of the game.

The mechanics of tennis are quite as marvelous as the mechanics of baseball. A tennis ball is about as temperamental a thing as you can imagine. When two such objects clash the logical result is a ball zipping madly, uncontrollably through the air. That is precisely what happens if the racket is in a novice's hands. But a little experience enables one to evade the laws of motion.

In the expert's hands the racket can make the mercury tennis ball perform docilely, unerringly and mysteriously.

The strategy of tennis is more suitable than that of baseball. Between players ordinarily proficient a tennis game is a continuous clash of wits, as well as of mechanical skill. A noted prize writer has said that next to the hardest demand on the quality called gameness is the quality of gameness eludes definition, but if it means taking advantage of your opponent's weakness, pushing him hard when he shows symptoms of retreating, outguessing him and standing the gaff when luck is running against you and holding your nerves stiff that is gameness then tennis tests that quality to its limit. As in baseball or football or boxing, so it is in tennis—the quitter never gets up very far in it. A game of presentable garb, of gentler speech and manner than the diamond, gridiron or squared circle, it is as virile as any of them. It is a fight. That is why it is claiming young America's attention and enthusiasm.

That is why it will hold its own and it is a clean fight.—St. Louis Republic.

LONGEVITY OF "OLD PARR."

Longevity is a subject the study of which has been too much neglected. Most people have heard of "Old Parr," but even the facts of his life are not familiar to the general public. He was really far from being the oldest of modern centenarians. He died in his one hundred and fifty-second year. He was twice married, and was 120 when he took a second wife. Until the age of 130 he was able to do his ordinary work. When he had reached the mature age of 150 he went to London to see Charles I, but it appears that his rough treatment at court hastened his end.

Long before the time when "Old Parr" flourished, there was Thomas Cain, who, according to the parish records of St. Leonard's, Shore-ditch,

Notice is hereby given by the Board of Commissioners of the City of Ogden of the intention of said Board to make the following described improvements, to wit:

To create the east side of Monroe avenue from 21st to 22nd Streets and both sides of Monroe Avenue from 22nd Street to 25th Street, a curb and gutter district, and to build thereon concrete curbs and gutters of the standard form, together with the necessary intersections, grading and all work pertaining thereto and to defray the whole of the cost thereof, estimated at $3,500.00, by a local assessment upon the lots or pieces of ground lying and being within the boundaries of the following district, being the district to be benefited and affected by said improvements, viz:

All the land lying between the outer boundary lines of the above streets and avenue, where curbs and gutters are not now built and a line drawn 50 feet outward from and parallel to the said outer boundary lines.

By order of the Board of Commissioners of Ogden City, Utah. Dated this 25th day of July, 1913.

T. A. DEVINE, Sheriff of Weber County, Utah. By G. W. LEATHAM, Deputy. 7-19-14wks.

lived from the fourth year of Richard II's reign. His age is given as 207. In other persons more long lived than Henry Jencks, a Yorkshireman, who died in his one hundred and sixty-ninth year, after a life of "temperance and labor"; William Edward, a Welshman, who died in 1668 at the age of 168, and Juana Truxo, a South Carolina negro, who in spite of her love of drink lived to be 162.

In longevity, women have rivaled men in length, as is shown by the case of the gay Countess of Desmond, who is credited with having once been Richard III's partner in a dance. She survived her husband, the Earl, seventy years, and a rhyming couplet informs an admiring world that She lived to the age of 110, And died of a fall from a cherry tree then.

Another account gives this wonderful woman's age as 140. Of much later date is the record of Dr. William Mead of Ware in Hertfordshire, England, who, in the authority of the headstone on his grave, appears to have lived 143 years.
